Privacy Policy – The Uncle Fred

Developer: CSV Production
Last updated: November 2, 2026

This Privacy Policy explains how the game The Uncle Fred ("the game") handles your information. In short: the game does not collect, store or share any personal data.

1. Information we collect

We do not collect any personal information. The game does not ask for your name, email address, location, contacts, photos or any other personal data. It does not require an account or a login.

2. Data stored on your device

The game saves your progress (current day, collected items), your settings (volume, look sensitivity, visual effects) and your unlocked achievements. This data is stored only locally on your device. It is never sent to us or to anyone else, and it is deleted when you uninstall the game.

3. Internet connection, analytics and advertising

The game works fully offline. It does not contain advertising, analytics, tracking, or third-party SDKs that collect data. We do not track you across other apps or websites.

4. In-app purchases

The game does not contain in-app purchases.

5. Children's privacy

Because the game does not collect any personal data, it does not knowingly collect information from children of any age.

6. Changes to this policy

If a future version of the game changes how data is handled, this Privacy Policy will be updated and the date above will change.
